The young Mencía 2018 Unculín is surprisingly floral and elegant, with a medium-bodied palate that shows harmonious, and it has the depth and clout of old vines, as if it's a much more serious wine. It fermented with 10% to 20% full clusters in stainless steel with indigenous yeasts and matured in stainless steel and oak foudre for six months. There are 40,000 bottles of this wine. Bravo! It was bottled in April 2019.
