The 2023 Dra. Jekyll is no longer from a single vineyard, as they have more Giró plots in the same lieu-dit, or paraje, four in total but only three were used for the wine this year, all on white and gray marls soils. The destemmed grapes fermented in small bins, and the wine had an élevage of 24 months in a 600-liter cask, one 300-liter and one 225-liter barrel and some glass demijohns. It comes in at 13.63% alcohol, with contained ripeness and a pH of 3.41 and 5.59 grams of acidity, denoting good freshness. It has dusty tannins and some reminiscences of Barolo, with notes of small wild berries, aromatic herbs and flowers, giving it a Mediterranean twist. But it's quite fresh this year, one of their finest ever. 1,327 bottles were filled in October 2025.
